

Becoming a Member of AAUW-WA

Membership in AAUW is open to all graduates who hold Associates (or equivalent), baccalaureate, or higher degrees from a regionally accredited college or university.

Most members join AAUW by first joining a branch. Aside from all the benefits of being part of a local branch that include belonging to a community of friends who enjoy the same things you do and who share your value of equity for all women and girls, when you join the branch, you also join the state and the national AAUW organizations.

Branch dues vary, but they include $8.00 for state dues and $46 for national. Beginning this year, $43 of national Association dues will be tax deductible. State and branch dues are not.

There are several categories of branch membership: life members, student affiliates, etc. If you do not live near one of the 36 local branches in Washington, you can become a member of our online branch, or you can be a member-at-large. Members-at-large are a member of the national Association, but not of a branch. However, we invite you to join the state organization if you choose.

For more information about branch membership, including dues, see the branch locator feature on this website. For general information or to join the state organization as a member-at-large, email membership@aauw-wa.org.
